

Gabby Ehman is a young and passionate political enthusiast who has been deeply involved in the world of politics from a remarkably young age. Her journey began even before she reached the sixth grade, when she started avidly reading and listening to the speeches of then-President Donald Trump. Captivated by his values and the messages of prominent Republican influencers such as Ben Shapiro and Candace Owens, Gabby found herself drawn to the ideals and principles of the Republican Party.

Her dedication was evident early on, as she meticulously copied speeches from President Trump into her journal, reflecting a deep engagement with the political discourse that resonated with her. This early immersion in politics was not just a fleeting interest but a profound calling that shaped her aspirations and worldview.

Gabby believes passionately in the potential for young people to drive significant change in society. She is convinced that it is crucial for the youth to get involved in politics, particularly in a time when she perceives that many are being misled by their educators. Gabby is determined to counter this influence by reaching out to her peers, educating them on conservative values, and guiding them toward what she believes is the right path.

With a vision to make the world a better place, Gabby is committed to influencing the youth and bringing them over to the conservative side. She sees this as not just an opportunity but a responsibility to ensure that the next generation is equipped with the values and principles that she holds dear.

While Gabby dreams of one day becoming a politician, she recognizes that her immediate mission is to start a chapter of Teenage Republicans in the North Phoenix area, specifically in Desert Hills and Anthem. She views this as a critical step in her journey, where she can foster a community of young conservatives who are informed, engaged, and ready to make a difference.

Gabby Ehman is a young leader with a clear vision and unwavering dedication to her cause. Her early start in politics, inspired by influential figures and a strong belief in conservative values, sets her apart as a promising advocate for the future of the Republican Party. Through her efforts to mobilize and educate her peers, she aims to lay the groundwork for a generation that will uphold and advance the principles she cherishes.